It is getting so on the South Side that any day Reb Russell doesn't pitch the fans think they should get a rebate at the gate. The Texas southpaw has become an idol among the bugs in the short time he has been a member of the White Hose crew and gets a big reception every time he enters the box.

And Reb is occupying the center of the diamond frequently—too frequently. He is beginning to show the effects of almost daily toil. He gets less rest than any other hurler on the squad, having fallen heir to Ed Walsh's rescuing job. This business was all right for Walsh, a veteran, but it is too great an undertaking for the youthful lefty. He has the physique to stand the grind, but the strain on his arm is too great. Thursday the Rebel acted as rescuer when the Naps got Benz in bad in the ninth and yesterday he performed similar service for Cicotte in the seventh.
